

Constitutional Republic

a form of government in which there is democratic voting, but governmental power is limited by the existence of a constitution that protects the rights of citizens

